

EDUCATOR RESOURCE—PREPARED STATEMENTS RELATED TO GENDER

- I think there are specific rules for being a boy or girl.
- I think that the rules for women and men are changing over time. For example, things are different now than in the 1950s.
- I think there are lots of similarities between boys and girls.
- I am an exception to at least one stereotype for being a girl or boy.
- I have been told that I'm not feminine enough or masculine enough.
- I would feel comfortable wearing a dress.
- I would feel comfortable cutting my hair very short.
- I would feel comfortable wearing one or more earrings.
- I would feel comfortable wearing a pink sweater.
- I would feel comfortable crying in front of my friends at a sad movie.
- I would feel comfortable hugging my friends who are the same gender as me.
- I love to play sports (or a sport).
- I am a caring person.
- I like to build things.
- I am really competitive when I play games.
- I am an introvert (introverts tend to be reserved and often take pleasure in solitary activities)
- I have been made fun of for being girly.
- I have been called tomboy before.
- I have heard of people who change their genders.
- I have been told to “man up.”
- My gender identity is important to me.
