A joke is just a joke, even when it is about sexual assault.
Wearing revealing clothes to a party is basically a come-on.
There is a lot of social pressure on guys from other guys to be sexually experienced.
Hollering at someone on the street about their body being hot is a kind of sexual violence.
If a guy spends money on a date, that guy can expect at least a kiss, if not more.
Sexual violence is not violent if the survivor is not physically injured.
Guys can't really be sexually assaulted.
Having regrets about sex is not the same as having been sexually assaulted.
No matter what's going on sexually, you always have the right to stop what's happening.
Rape culture hurts everyone, not just survivors/victims of sexual assault.
